SEC. 002 – Mondays 4-6pm - M-117, Wednesdays 2-4pm M114

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides a comprehensive understanding of Design Thinking for creative problem-solving in visual communication. Through a variety of engaging hands-on projects, students will apply technical skills to create visual messages for both web and print media. The curriculum emphasizes the interplay of form and function in design, helping students to develop a strong conceptual foundation that will enable them to approach design challenges with greater confidence and creativity. By the end of the course, students will possess the skills and knowledge necessary to succeed in a range of fields that demand a deep understanding of visual communication.

COURSE'S ROLE IN THE PROGRAM

This course builds upon the foundations established in Design 2, taking students to a higher conceptual level in their design abilities. By exploring the process and strategy of Design Thinking, students will learn to creatively solve communication problems in new and innovative ways. With a focus on theoretical understanding of advertising, students will be equipped to apply these concepts in practical, hands-on contexts in Graphic Design 4 and 5. As a third-semester course, this class is designed to challenge students to apply critical thinking skills and creative problem-solving techniques to real-world design challenges.

COURSE OBJECTIVES & LEARNING ACTIVITIES

Apply different communication methods and tools to develop a creative message and plan, execute, edit, and present your work

- Show an understanding of the symbolic meaning of images and the role of rhetorical devices in visual communication.
- Analyse demographics and psychographics of a user persona(s) and a creative brief to develop a promotional piece with a conceptually driven message.
- Develop conceptually driven messages, integrate concepts into promotional documents, and create mock-ups to display work.
- Apply creative problem solving and technical skills in the creation, reproduction, and distribution of visual messages for web and print
- Engage in ongoing testing, reflection, critique, and refinement during the design process.
- Present a rationale for your design choices and describe your design process

TENTATIVE SCHEDULE AND EVALUATION

NOTE: Detailed assignment instructions available online.

All Semester	25% Class Activities 5% Critical engagement	You will work on a series of exercises which you will complete during class or as simple homework. You should be involved with the course activities, class discussions and collaborate with your classmates.
Weeks 1- 5	10% Design Project 10% Team Presentation 10%Test	You will apply the DT process in a practical project. Teams will present a topic assigned by the instructor. You will apply the design thinking process to solve a design problem and pitch your solution to the class.
Weeks 6- 9	15% Conceptual Poster Series	You will create a persuasive poster series based on a series of iterations and feedback rounds.
Weeks 11 - 15	25% Ad Campaign (LIA).	You will design an advertising campaign for a product using the Design Thinking process.

Demonstration of the Integration of Learning: Students will complete a project which involves designing promotional materials addressing a social problem. The objective is to develop visually appealing promotional pieces that communicate a conceptually driven message.
